MUCH DISAPPOINTMENT AT MORRIS PARK BE-CAUSE OF POOR STARTING.

Frank T. Clarke has resigned the place of starter for the Jockey Club. This was the proper and mauly step for him to take after his many mishaps on Tuesday, Thursday and yesterday. Recent exeavations in Asia prove that horse races were run in the neighborhood of the Euphrates thousands of years before the Byzantine emperors ap-plauded the victors in the city of Constantine. But the antique starters in the days of Melchizedek did not use a machine. They simply told the nd the Tarals and Sloanes of that period simply went. The Carke machine has not gained new laureis at Morris Park, although Clarke himself gave the signals for two laggards to pull the lazy ropes. This machine is too slow. Yesterday the starter and the machine together inflicted almost as much pain as either Torquemade or Alva ever inflicted in a single afternoon. Surgeons say that the agony endured by persons afflicted with angina pectoris or tetanus is frightful in its intensity. But the tertures which Carke caused were more excruciating than those of angina pectoris or tanus. Nevertheless Clarke has a sunny temper, dulcet ways and many engaging traits. It is his aim and wish that every one may be happy. He was overcome with sorrow when he and his machine wrought so much wee at Merris Park. In the second race Tragedian was backed am-bitiously and energetically. On public form Tra-gedian had that race under his feet. He was left the post with his head turned the wrong way, and he cantered over the course. Ben Ronald was little better off, and Ross O, was far behind when the barrier rose. This was poignant, but worse things followed. In the third race the barrier broke as it was jerked upward. America's champion jockey. Taral, was thrown from Glenmoyne and was somewhat hurt, while the favorite, the Keene filly Royal Rose, was left at the post with her head turned the wrong way.

Altogether Clarke and his machine made so ghastly a mess of the starting that Clarke gave up his place after the last race. Pettingill will hold the flag on Tuesday, but if he does not afford satisfaction he will be supplanted quickly. He cannot act as starter for many hours if he is not more ficient than he was in Chicago in 1893, when he kept the horses at the post for more than an hour in the American Derby, a mile and a half run, and ruined the chances of the Eastern horses by the inexcusable delay. That passage in Pettengill's career was extremely discreditable. The dead past, nevertheless, may be allowed to bury its dead, and if Pettengill does well at Morris Park for the renainder of this meeting much will be forgiven If the starting had been excellent and skilful, the cause most of the lockeys who were not left at the deny that in Belmar the American turf has at least one thoroughly consistent horse. This gray son of Belvidere and Adele has won six races in succession carrying the colors of "Pittsburg" Smith. He is worthy of honor and of praise. Few horses in training in any part of the world are so unifinehingly honest and true as Belmar has been since "Pittsburg Phil" bought him. The horse, the owner, the trainer and the jockey have all set admirable examples for others to follow. Some writers who have not studied the subject exhaustively have frequently alluded to Sir Walter this year as a wonderfully brave, honest, game, courageous horse Sir Walter was worthy of those words of eulogy as a two-year-old and as a three-year-old, and in several contests after he was three years of age. But Sir Walter became a cunning rogue some time ago. That is as certain as anything can be time ago. That is as certain as anything can be in horseracing. In several races last year and this year he proved plainly that he was a cuaning rogue, and would not struggle gallantly at a pinch. Yesterday he was the favorite in the Manhattan Handicap. He got away well and he had every chance to win it he possessed the courage now which he exhibited repeatedly in 1832 and 1884, 436m. Belmar and Dutch Skater outran him because he played the part of a cunning rogue when the contest became severe. No careful observer without prejudice could discover any other reason for his acted by Dutch Skater except cunning roguishness. But he may win races hereafter, as any cunning rogue may win a race at any time if he happens to feel in the right humor, and if circumstances favor him, and if he is not hard presset.

Why did James Galway sell Belmar? What a pity! Everybody likes and esteems Mr. Galway, and every decent vistor to the taces, and every true turfman would have been glad to see Belmar carry Mr. Galway's colors to victory in six races in succession. But, sooth to say, Mr. Galway is not fortunate enough to have a trainer of sufficient ability to capture six successive prizes with Belmar. Moreover, it must not be forgotten that Pittsburg Smith has been shrewd enough to secure Sloane's services, and Sloane is now riding more successfully than any other American jockey. Sloane's riding of Belmar in every race in which he has ridden him has been superb. If Sims or Doggett or Littlefield or Hamilton had been on Belmar in those six races which Belmar has won, Belmar would probably have lost at least four out of the sky. In fact, Sims rode some wretched races on Belmar before Mr. Galway sold the horse to P. Phil. Smith. On Thursday Sims rode Amer in Slovenly style, a bungling.

which Belmar has won, Belmar would probably have lost at least four out of the six. In fact, Sims rode some wretched races on Belmar before Mr. Galway sold the horse to P. Phil. Smith. On Thursday Sims rode Ameer in slovenly style, a bungling, blundering piece of work. Not even Altgeld or Bryan himself could have bungled and blundered much worse than Sims did when Ameer was defeated by Premier. Yesterday Sloane rode Ameer as well as any horse could be ridden. It was a fine display of jockeyship. But Tom Cromwell is much superior to Premier, and he defeated Ameer handily in the face of all Sloane's masterly riding.

J. E. McDonald owns a brute named Midgeley. Of so that evalue did he account the beast that a few months ago he offered to sell him for the pailty price of $100. Nobody wanted Midgeley then for even one hundred Bryan silver depreciated dollars. McDonald couldn't get rid of Midgeley. So he put him fo jumping, and Midgeley has won four hurdle races. Will Mr. Belmont kindly consent to put Keenan to jumping, or kill the beast? Keenan may possibly be as useful at jumping as Midgeley is. Apparently he is good for nothing except jumping or glue. He crawled in the Manhattan Handicap. His performance was so shocking as to fill every generous soul with grief that such a creature was carrying the famous Belmont colors.

The Westchester Racing Association might well give an extra day's racing solely for the benefit of those owners whose horses have been left at the post at this meeting, the contests to be confined to horses which have been left at the post at this meeting, the contests to be confined to horses which have been left at the post at this meeting, the contests to be confined to horses which have been left at the post at this meeting, the contests to be confined to horses which have been left at the post at this meeting, the contests to be confined to horses which have been left at the post.

Gotham has recovered his speed. He won the third race handsomely in fast time with 140 pounds up.

Mr. Belmont's Merry Prince had no difficulty in capturing the last race, walle Adolph Nelson's filly Louise N., at long odds, took second place. If Louise N., should prove to be a stake filly of genuine worth a correcous Louise N. banner would soon be floating in Cortiandt-st, and another one in Broadway, and the rejoicing would be general, hearty and sincere. Louise N. is dedicated to the cause of McKinley and sound money and American prosperity, as is her kind-hearted, wholesouled and open-handed owner.

Among the features of the racing programme now being run at Morris Park by the Westchester Racing Association is the Feather Purse, for two-year-olds and upward, at two miles. It will be run on Saturday. October 31, and is to close on Saturday, October 31, and is to close on Saturday, October 31, and is to close on Saturday to the famous Feather Plate run at the last autumn meeting at Newmarket. England, over the Cesarewitch course, at over two and one-quarter miles. The race is popular among owners in England, and in the last skiveen years it has been won fifteen times by two-year-olds and once by a three-year-old, two-year-olds running second thirteen times in the same period. The weights carried have averaged from eighty to ninety pounds, the number of starters averaging from ten to twelve. Last year the Feather Plate was won by Leonold de Rothschild's filly, by Morglay-American Girl, the latter a sister of Foxhall. The winner in 1833 was by Foxhall. It is a selling race, and several winners have sold as high as 150 guiness.

Each time the mare got the pole at the start, but broke on the quarterstretch, and allowed the White Plains horse to lead her under the wire. The horses were lapped all the time, and each hent had a close finish. The time was 2:20%, 2:21%, 2:24%, The Tarrytown contingent were heavy losers. Chadwick's was much the best of the three tied scores, and it was also the leading actual score of the tournament. The last nine holes of his morning round were made in 38, which is an average of scarcely more than four strokes a hole. His first drive cleared the ravine and fence easily and landed the ball on the green-150 yards. THE MORRIS COUNTY TOURNAMENT. AMES A. TYNG, AFTER A TIE GAME WITH J.

OTIS POST, WINS THE MEN'S CHAMPIONSHIP There were twenty-seven competitors yesterday in the semi-annual tournament for the men's champlonship of the Morris County Golf Club. The trophy for this contest is the handsome silver cup given by Mrs. H. McK. Twombly two or three year ago. It has been won at various times by H. P. Phipps, William Shippen, James R. Lowell and James A. Tyng. The latter player, by scoring another victory yesterday, lays a second claim upon times by the same person.

J. Otis-Post, who played a remarkable game yes terday, far surpassing his previous scores, tied with Tyng for first place. Both made scores of $1. The importance of the match, which was to decide the importance of the match, which was to decide the club championship, required that eighteen holes more should be played to determine the victor. Both men were anxious to know the result, and the tie was played off immediately, in the pt sence of a large assemblage of spectators. This time Tyng managed to cover the course in five strokes less than his rival, although the scores, NI and 92 were not so good as in the first round. Both players were a trife tired from such long-continued playing without an interval of rest. Below are their scores in each contest:
